

CURE

Centre for Urban Research and Education

Breakfast Workshop

Hintonburg/Mechanicsville: Reflecting and Reaching Resilience

WHEN: Wednesday, July 24, 2008 ■ 8:30 a.m.-11:30 a.m.
Causeway Work Centre, 22 O'Meara Street
Ottawa ON K1Y 4N6, Map:
<http://www.causewayworkcentre.org/contact/map.html>

WHAT: Resilience is about communities building on their strengths to adapt to challenging situations in order to proactively plan and manage for the long term. Organizations play an important role in resilience. They understand the people, places and priorities that make communities thrive. Given many demands, however, it is sometimes difficult for organizations to coordinate at the community level.

We welcome you to join us in a workshop about the value and potential mechanisms for organizational collaboration to: a) support the City of Ottawa's Neighbourhood Plan; b) reflect on the role of resilience with respect to emergency preparedness.

WHO: Organizations working in, with and for the neighbourhood of Hintonburg/Mechanicsville.

WHY:

- Support your organization's mandate and activities in the neighbourhood
- Strengthen relationships with other agencies
- Contribute to policy-level discussions

To acknowledge your contribution, a small honorarium will be provided to participating organizations.

Please RSVP to Melanie Hientz (melanie_hientz@carleton.ca) by July 18, 2008. Space is limited. Breakfast will be provided.

The workshop is facilitated by the Centre for Voluntary Sector Research and Development and the Centre for Urban Research and Education, both located at Carleton University.

Centre for Voluntary Sector Research and Development